What is a cookie?

Cookies are small text files that are placed on your device by us when you visit our website.

The cookie categories below provide more information on the different types of cookies we use. Our default setting is to have these cookies turned off unless you choose to allow them, and you can select whether or not to allow these. You can change your preferences by Clicking Here.

How we use Cookies

viepal uses cookies to help make our website work, or make it work more efficiently, and cookies recognise and remember your preferences and show you personalised ads.

To achieve this, we use four different categories:

Essential Cookies

These cookies are essential and help support security and basic functionality such as page navigation, cookie preferences and access to secure areas of the website. For instance they make it possible for you to stay logged in as you browse through your various internet banking screens. The website cannot function properly without these cookies.

Analytics Cookies

Analytics cookies allow us to enrich our understanding of how visitors interact with our digital channels by collecting and reporting information. For instance they measure how often you visit our website and how you use it. This information helps us improve our website so that you can have a better experience when you use it in the future.

Personalisation Cookies

Personalisation cookies enable our website to remember information that changes the way the website behaves or looks, for example your preferred language, and what layout and banners are most suitable to you. They may also be used to personalise the way we communicate with you.

Marketing Cookies

The intention of marketing cookies is for us and our advertising partners to show you more relevant advertising across the internet based on your use of our site. Tailoring advertising allows for the optimisation of delivery of ads and the exclusion of audiences from irrelevant marketing activities.
